About Pittsfield

Pittsfield is the largest city in, and the county seat of, Pike County. It is located on U.S. Route 54 between the Mississippi River and the Illinois River and less than 5 miles south I-72. Because of its relation to the Mississippi and Illinois rivers, the land in Pike County is riddled with streams and bottom lands. Thus, the land around Pittsfield and Pike County is much more hilly and forested than the rest of the plains of central Illinois.

This geography, combined with a relative lack of heavy development, make the areas around Pittsfield particularly suited to wildlife. Pittsfield regularly attracts large numbers of out-of-state game hunters, and Pike county consistently leads all other Illinois counties in the number of white-tailed deer harvested during fall hunting seasons.

Pittsfield was initially settled by a group of settlers from Pittsfield, Massachusetts who named it after their town of origin in the early 1800's.

The city has a strong Lincoln connection. Lincoln worked 34 cases between 1839 and 1852 in Pittsfield, and his personal secretary, John Hay, was born and raised in the city.

The iconic county courthouse was designed by Henry Elliott and built in 1894 by Robert and William Franklin. It is the only octagonal shaped courthouse in the state.

Industries

Healthcare is one of the largest employment industries in Pittsfield, while retail trade, manufacturing, services, and education round out the top 5 employment industries. Agriculture is an important industry within the county and regionally.
